Concrete Bases for New Bridge Will Be Completed this Week

Engineers expect to finish north abutment base by Saturday—Old Main Street bridge shorn at both ends—Is supported on piles in river.

Construction on the Main street bridge is progressing at a rapid rate owing to a good break in the weather, according to engineers on the job.

The men are rushing the pouring of concrete so that the concrete abutments will be set before the cold wave comes. They are also desirous of getting the piling out of the river before the water starts freezing over and ice forms to complicate the work.

The base for the south abutment was poured two weeks ago. This was a 24 hour job, with concrete being mixed and poured right on the job. A similar pouring is expected to be done this week-end on the north abutment base.

Steel forms have been set during the past week for the north abutment base and from 10 to 12 feet of solid concrete will be poured into the huge rectangular hole made by the forms and by the taking of earth from the hole to a depth of eight feet below the waterline of the river.

Wood forms have been constructed on the south side of the river to the height of the concrete and work will be done pouring this as soon as possible.

As the situation now stands one base is in, another will be in this week, and then the walls will rise on either side. The old bridge now stands in the middle of the river with both ends shorn. It is resting on several piles. The entire steel upper structure has been torn away leaving just the side rails and base or flooring and under structure.

The work of removing that part of the bridge will begin as soon as possible.

Three Baptist Ministers Now Residents Here

Addison now has three resident Baptist clergymen. One is actively in charge of the local church, the Rev. Mondula C. Johns. The Rev. George Arnold is retired and lives in the village and last week the Rev. and Mrs. Melbourne Riffle and three children of Lindley moved here. They are living in the Frank Root house on Baldwin Ave. The Rev. Riffle works in the Ingersoll-Rand plant and preaches in the Tuscarora and Lindley Baptist Churches.

Increased Fat Production Will Up Farm $ Here

The increase in the record keeping of cows in a dairy herd in this vicinity is due to the knowledge that the farmers are receiving from Dairy Herd Improvement Association, Farm Bureaus, various cattle and bull associations, from the State College at Ithaca and from various other sources.

However, the records are no good unless acted upon. Judge Edwin C. Smith pointed the way at the Advertising Club last week. In a talk with a representative of this paper later, he enlarged upon his talk and exhibited a copy of a Dairy Herd Improvement Association News Letter of September 15. The letter was issued by the Department of Animal Husbandry of the State College of Agriculture in Ithaca.

The theme of the letter is "Better Cows Make Better Incomes Over Feed Costs". There is attached a graph chart showing 156 pounds of butter fat, average yearly, cost $32 in roughage and $19 in grain and gives $28 in income over food costs. Increase the production to 204 pounds of butter fat and the rough cost remains at $32, the grain cost increases to $43 and yet that cow will produce $47 income over food costs.

If the cow can produce 251 pounds of fat, the roughage costs increases $2 to 34, the grain cost to $28 and the income goes to $67 over food costs. Then as the cow goes into the higher brackets of production of fat, the roughage costs remain fairly constant as do grain costs, but income over all food costs multiplies rapidly. This is shown as follows: 300 pounds of butterfat, $35 for cost of roughage, $33 for grain and $88 income over food costs; 349 pounds of fat, $36 for roughage, $38 for grain and an income of $112 over food costs; 397 pounds of fat, 373 cost of roughage $44 for cost of grain and $136 income over food costs and the 440 pounds of fat cost $39 in roughage, $48 in grain and produces $152 income over food cost. There are many 400 pound producers in the vicinity.

Willkie-McNary Banner Hung Over Main Street

The Addison "Willkie for President" Club, which was organized last week, went into action immediately and secured a "Willkie and McNary" banner which was hung over Main street, Saturday morning. The huge banner is hung from John Davis store roof to the roof of the Grange Hall over the A & P Tea store. Milton H. Crane supervised the erection of the banner which was erected to remind voters of this vicinity of election day and the two candidates of the Republican party.

Weekday Religious Classes Are Proving Popular

The week-day school of religious instruction being conducted by the pastors of the churches of the community is popular with students and with parents, based on the attendance. Nearly one hundred per cent attendance is reported in the lower grades, grades for which the schools are intended.

The third grade Protestant children go to the Baptist Church each Wednesday afternoon, the fourth grade to the Presbyterian Church and fifth graders to the Methodist Church. The courses of instruction are interdenominational, worked out by the clergymen cooperating in the movement and using a common textbook.

Episcopal and Catholic students of all grades attend their respective churches. This school takes the place of Sunday school in some instances and seems to fill a long felt want in church programs for the children.

Library Assistants Chosen for AHS

Student assistants have been named for the high school library by Miss Janet Young, English teacher and librarian. These students will be on duty at various periods during each day to assist in discipline and other library activities: First period, Carol Greenfield; second period, Catherine Permissin; third period, Myra Snyder; fourth period, Irene Stillman; sixth period, Ruth Jones; seventh period, Robert Shumway and eighth period, Evelyn Reynolds.

The special 17 car train carrying the Republican presidential nominee, Wendell L. Willkie, is scheduled to go through Addison sometime Friday, October 25, according to the schedule made out recently. At the present time he is in the northern part of the state. Attempts are being made to have the train stop in Corning for five minutes after leaving Hornell. It is expected that the train will slow down going through the village as it has done in most places.

Rev. Axtell Gives Talk On Nature to Ministers

The Rev. John V. Axtell of the Addison Presbyterian Church was the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Steuben County Ministers' Association. He read a prepared paper on "Why I go to the woods" in which he told of the wonders and beauty of nature at various times of the year, described the carelessness of man in nature's presence and the destruction wrought by man. He then told of the music of wind through the trees, of the birds and the sermons in the flowers and described the sweetness of the music of the waterfalls and music of the birds. The Rev. M. C. Johns of the Addison Baptist Church also attended.

Beware Motorists Danger in Leaves On Our Streets

Two dangers lurk in leaves for the motor car driver during this beautiful month of October.

The first is in the fact that children play in the leaves and may be covered up and unobserved by the motorist, starting his car or bringing it to a stop at the curb in a pile of leaves. Children like to play in leaves. The soft bed it forms for falling bodies, the color, the cleanliness of new fallen leaves, all combine to make it a dandy place to play. Children cannot be expected to think of all the dangers in their play, so it behooves adults to think of and for them.

The second danger, while not dangerous to life and limb, is great. That concerns the motorist who speeds through a street where leaves are burning. The after draft he leaves pulls leaves along with him and fires may leap from leaf to leaf, debris to debris and leave great damage from fire in its wake. A minute or two lost in driving slowly along a street where leaves are burning will not matter in the general day of time, but it will matter much if a fire is started from a speeding motorist.

Baptist Young People At State Convention

These young people attended the Annual Judson Fellowship convention of New York State at Rochester, October 11 and 12: Joyce Allen, Esther Docherty, Blanche Shellen, and Billy Ford. Rev. M. C. Red Cross Fund Drive Begins November 11

The annual Red Cross roll call for members will begin in Addison and vicinity on November 11 according to an announcement by Chairman of the Addison Chapter, Elmer C. Bovee.

An special appeal for funds is being made this year owing to the many demands being made upon all Red Cross units for assistance and aid in the international emergency created by the wars abroad.

In addition many demands have been made upon the national and local chapters for assistance in American calamities. This is the only financial appeal made during the year.

There have been appeals for furniture for local uses, for clothing for local distribution and for workers to knit and sew for soldiers and civilians abroad. These appeals are continuing. This is especially so at this time when hospital supplies are needed in great abundance.

Clothing is not accepted by the Red Cross for shipment abroad. Clothing should be sent to the "Bundles for Britain" committee in Corning. Clothing and shoes are needed for refugees.

It is expected that greater financial appeals will be made as United States becomes more interested in the war in foreign places. And should the war strike the United States, as seems inevitable at this time according to leaders, there will be more and more demands upon the Red Cross for supplies, ambulances, hospital supplies and food. Through all cooperating with small sums, a huge national treasury can be created by the Red Cross to meet any emergency, national, international or local.

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

WAR NEWS —

Focal point of interest in the European war this week is the movement of Nazi troops into Rumania and the multiplicity of events this maneuver forecasts. First detachments of men were reportedly some 15,000 in number but soon the force had swollen to ten times that number fully armed and equipped with 400 anti-aircraft guns and many planes.

Nazi movements into the Balkans have brought no statement from Stalin, but the Red dictator is countering with large forces along his newly acquired Bessarabian frontiers. Gun emplacements are being set ready to meet Hitler if he advances too far to suit Stalin. New air fields are being built in Bessarabia.

Turkey is encouraging Greece and Yugoslavia to oppose further Axis penetration in the Balkans with her assistance. Turkey has sent notice to Germany that 2,000 bayonets will oppose any attempted Nazi thrust through her territory to the Near East. The Turks are also endeavoring to form an alliance with Russia to block the Axis.

Germany statements that a move into Rumania was necessitated to save Rumanian oil fields from British sabotage is recalled by the report three large wells have been destroyed. Certain it is that Hitler needs the Rumanian oil desperately to carry on the air battle of Britain.

Military leaders are viewing the Axis move as the first gesture in a campaign designed to capture the Suez Canal, take Egypt and break the British blockade. Nazi shock troops are reported at the front at Sidi Barani to bolster Italian forces getting ready to invade Egypt.

London endured one of the worst bombings of the war the first of the week. Clouds of planes broke through the defenses to fly over the city dropping destruction and killing many people. Incendiary and heavy demolition bombs caused tremendous damage while fires were numerous.

Britain continues to deal blow for blow to Hitler in the air, although the RAF seems to confine its objectives more to military points. Systematic raids are carried out against vital arms factories, munition plants troop concentrations and transportation systems. Last week the British claimed to have destroyed 3,000 Nazi troops aboard two transports sunk by RAF bombs.

Japanese sources state that orders have been issued to bomb the Burma road in anticipation of its opening by the British.

THE POLITICAL FRONT —

The President delivered another of his radio talks Sunday night on hemisphere defense. Before the broadcast he announced it would be non-political hence should be sent on the air waves free.

Elliott Roosevelt tried to resign his captaincy in the army this week, but resignation was refused by army officials. Young Roosevelt was told he had enlisted for a specified period and that he could be used as a liaison officer if his eyesight were too poor to allow him to go in the air force. A storm of criticism has been leveled at officials because the President's son was given a captain's commission upon enlistment. Ordinary young men by the thousands are asking why they should not be made officers without experience as well as young Roosevelt.

Wendell Willkie continues his tireless campaigning. Finishing in New England last week he spoke in Albany Saturday, Syracuse Monday and Rochester and Buffalo Tuesday before starting a swing into Minnesota and Wisconsin. He will return East next Friday and pause for a brief address at Elmira, Friday, October 25. Huge crowds have heard Willkie all along the route, and occasional throwing of vegetables at his entourage the Republican candidate accepts with a smile.

Mr. Roosevelt has continued to refuse to discuss the issues of the campaign in his run for a third term.

NO PLACE FOR LOW POLITICS

The lowest turn the current campaign has taken is the smear attempt being made to link Mr. Willkie's ancestry with a fellowship to Hitler. The insidious nature of this attempt to "smear" the Republican candidate comes from the fact he is admittedly of German blood, hence a few shallow-minded folks might believe this brazen lie.

It is one more example of the unprincipled limits the New Dealers will go to try to carry their aims. It makes no difference to them that Willkie fought for his country AGAINST Germany in the last war—that his ancestors fled that country because of persecution. Even the President hinted to a press conference that Hitler would like to see him defeated.

Probably the contrary is true. Hitler with his cunning Gestapo agents doubtless knows that executive bragging has not brought speed to the American defense program. He knows the President has been unable to solve the employment problem of the country, so why should he wish to see a Roosevelt defeat?

As for the "smear" campaign, it is unworthy of any American citizen. Where in this country can you find a citizen without a mixture of European blood flowing through their veins? Few of us have to go back more than a couple of generations to find some of our forebears coming here from one of the countries across the Atlantic which now are engaged in death struggle. If we were to say every American with German blood, or Italian blood in their veins could not be trusted in this land, then we would be slapping the face of millions of our fellow countrymen as loyal, perhaps more devoted to the country than we ourselves.

Indeed, that is exactly the interpretation millions of Americans will put upon this "smear" campaign. Instead of believing the monstrous story that Willkie is for Hitler, they will say that those who started this infamous story have cast a gross insult to every one of us whose ancestry crossed over from Germany.

It is not too surprising that New Deal politicians should stoop to this level of campaigning if one remembers what has happened in this country the past seven and one-half years. The New Deal thrived upon the diet of class hatred. The poor were taught to hate the rich—business men and bankers have been maligned in their turn until easily misguided persons came to believe the great growth and expansion of our country came in spite of the system of free enterprise, instead of owing to it.

Such seeds of hatred cannot long be sown in a land, even in this one, without reaping a harvest of hate, disruption and social revolution. Dictatorships start in just this way. Did not Hitler rise to power over the prostrate bodies of the Jews of Germany whom he singled out to focus the hate of misguided Germans looking for something to blame for their deplorable state? Governor Lehman should bear that fact clearly in mind while insinuating that Hitler wants to see Willkie elected.

What we need is a new birth of trust and understanding in this country. We need a leader who will not fan the flames of class hatred, but instead will re-unite us in a national unity which now arbitrarily hedges off industrialist and laborer, farmer and banker, producer and consumer. We need to reaffirm the faith our fathers had in the nation and the God which gave it to them. For no one knows what harrowing times this country may be facing in the dark tomorrow, yet we do know that united we can face and conquer all our enemies, but divided we too shall fall.

Low politics of the "smear" order have no place in the days we are living.

A dictatorship is a nation where men once had freedom but didn't use it.
—A. Brandon.

WHERE ARE FIFTH COLUMNISTS?

Charging that the real Fifth Column in America was on the taxpayers' payroll, Hazel Huffman, one time Dies committee investigator, told the Rochester Kiwanis Club that "it is high time for all good Americans to purge the government of collectivist-minded crackpots now in public office."

Miss Huffman asserted that the Communistic Fifth Column is America's major problem. "And by Communistic I mean all Marxians whether they are Communists, Fascists, Nazis or masquerading as liberals, New Deal Democrats or Progressive Republicans", she added.

Declaring she spoke not as a Democrat or as a Republican but as an American, she said "It is high time that both of our major political parties seek to make us defenseless, she continued."

Further, she said, there are many in this country who believe the Constitution outmoded. Pointing to the recent Fortune magazine poll in which 20 per cent of the American people believe the document should be revised and 4,000,000 favor its destruction entirely, Miss Huffman declared such persons wish "to make way for a collectivist society."

CASH BOUNTIES FOR VOLUNTARY ENLISTMENTS

During the War of 1812, voluntary enlistment in western New York brought a cash bounty of $124, although the base pay was only $8 per month.

Soldiers of the Revolution were paid $4 per month, when they got paid, but Massachusetts and New York established an all-time high for United States Army pay when they gave up to $1,000 in cash bounties plus $86.66 a month and many acres of land to each recruit!

After the war of 1812 the base pay of a private was cut to $2 a month, and when the Civil War came, privates in the U. S. Army were getting $13 a month. Conscription came in 1864, and the base pay rose to $14.87 a month. A cash bounty of $100 was paid for voluntary enlistment. When a person was conscripted during the Civil War, he could pay someone else to go in his place. Each conscription had to provide a certain number of soldiers, and the Civil War draft board didn't care who served, or who paid someone else to serve in his place, just so they got the total number of soldiers required.

Today, the United States soldier is the highest paid in the world. The base pay of $30 per month contrasts sharply with the $6 per month received by the soldiers of Hitler's German Legions, and the $4.65 per month paid to the Japanese warriors of the Mikado. The modern Italian soldier fights for $7.50, the Russian for $11.70, and the British Tommies get $18 per month.

Lowest paid soldiers of the first class powers were the Polius of shattered France, who were getting only $1.05 per month just before the collapse of the French Republic. No one ever got rich in the army, but Uncle Sam pays his soldiers far better than any other country. However, money does not buy patriotism.

As the blessings of health and fortune have a beginning, so they must also find an end. Everything rises but to fall, and increases but to decay.

"TO BE, OR, NOT TO BE..."

It is the trite saying that "self-preservation is the first law of nature."

From Hitler's Mein Kampf we quote: "No nation on earth holds a square yard of territory by any right derived from Heaven. Frontiers are made and altered by human agency alone. The fact that a nation succeeds in acquiring an unfair share of territory is no superior reason for its being respected forever. It merely proves the strength of the conqueror and the weakness of those who lose it. This strength alone constitutes the right to possess. . . . In the future nothing will grant us land and life for our nation except the power of a victorious sword."

Furthermore, Hitler has declared that the Nazi party is taking over all youth at ten years of age, "and never again shall they be free in their whole lives."

It has become obvious to all thinking people that Nazism has become a world theory; a declaration of war against all existing philosophies of life and government. This involves the question of the right of possession, and Hitler has clearly stated that the power of the victorious sword is the only law to govern the possession of territory.

It becomes increasingly clear that under this law of the sword Hitler intends to take title to any part of the world which his armies can take by force.

The happiness, contentment and prosperity of people will constitute no right of possession of their beloved land.

To live at peace with their neighbor . . . to develop high skill in the arts of peace . . . to push back the frontiers of a new land . . . to build great cities and to spread the benefits of great industry among the millions of people . . . to raise educational, cultural and living standards to the highest levels in history . . . none of these things will give any nation's people the right to the continued possession of their land, if the sword of Hitler is victorious.

Because the law of Nazidom is that "strength alone constitutes the right to possess", it becomes imperative that democracies in this hemisphere must invest billions of dollars in building an impregnable defense on land, sea and in the air and in the training of a military force amply able to defend the precious possessions of this nation.

Now, as never before, let every citizen fervently affirm in the language of the Declaration of Independence, "with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

The only thing worse than being talked about is not being talked about.
—Oscar Wilde.

There are those who cry down the regular army and say it is brutal. Either they don't know what they are talking about or they are traitors seeking to hurt us.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

Nothing could be worse for higher education in this country than to have it thought that enrollment in a college or university is a method of avoiding conscription.—Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of Chicago University.

HE NEEDS THEM BOTH

Science Knows Birds Fly South—
But Can't Find Out Why

An army without banners is drifting south across the face of America, in full retreat.

It is the army of birds, on fall migration. Unlike the gay legions that flew north in spring, it lacks song and is uninformed in dull colors that gain hardly more than passing notice except from hunters scanning the skies for ducks.

Ducks of course are but a small portion of the whole. Most of the robins that chorused in the spring, most of the bluebirds that caused village poets to break into print, steal south unnoticed.

The army is in retreat, but from what? No one knows for certain.

The obvious answer that it is fleeing cold weather does not quite hold water. Witness the occasional bird that stays in the north because it has been held up by sickness until after its migratory urge has passed. And then, of course, many species make a habit of remaining in the north.

This is only one of the paradoxes that have puzzled students and led to tall stories.

For instance, there's that old one about the hibernation of owls. Aristotle put it into the record more than 2,000 years ago and by the nineteenth century there were scores of scientific papers dealing with the phenomenon. Today no scientist will even suggest that a swallow buries itself in the mud for the winter.

There have been other ideas just as fanciful—like the one that little birds ride south on big birds' backs. The real enigmas are, first, what makes the birds migrate and, second, what enables them to find their way?

One theory is that the birds are only repeating great racial movements dictated in ancient times by the advance and retreat of the glacial ice-cap. In any event, the depletion of food supplies up north during the winter is an important consideration.

Once launched on their journey, the birds follow different paths and different time schedules.

Land-bounding naturalists used to gaze aloft in awe and estimate bird speeds at fabulous figures. Today they know that ducks and geese rarely hit 60, that a woodcock may throttle down to 5 miles an hour.

But there is still room for fable. It's pretty well authenticated that duck hawks stooping to their prey hit it up to 165 miles an hour and that the cloud swifts of the West Indies reach speeds of 150 miles.

Even more marvelous are some of the distance flights. The golden plover, now a rarity, hops off from Nova Scotia and next sees land in South America, 2,400 miles away. The Carolina rail, which would rather walk, easily flies across the Caribbean.

Champion migrant of all is the Arctic tern which enjoys more daylight than any other living creature. It spends summers as far north as there is land. Then crossing the Atlantic via Iceland to Europe, it goes to the Atlantic 11,000 miles away for the summer.

How does it find its way? No one

RESOLVE

To keep my health!
To do my work!
To live!
To see to it I grow and gain and give!
Never to look behind me for an hour!
To wait in weakness, and to walk in power;
But always fronting onward to the light,
Always and always facing toward the right,
Robbed, Starved, defeated, fallen wide astray—
Oh, with what strength I have! Back to the way!

COMMENT
By THE OBSERVER

The election has not been won—not yet, despite reams of views about how the country can grow rich by working less and spending more—keeping prosperity "on order" so to speak.

The people are rolling it over in their minds, centering thought on the wisdom of a third term. Wondering!

As one fellow said the other day if the Democrats can change Chairmen in the middle of the stream maybe that's the cue for the country to shift Presidents.

You'll get their answer on the night of November 5th. Two things are certain: the polls will open at six in the morning and the Republicans will occupy top position on the voting machines. Moving up, so to speak.

Your right to vote is a priceless heritage. Defend it. Preserve it for your children and grand-children. For all future generations!

Reduced to simple terms it's a matter of patriotism and self-preservation.

Wendell Willkie calls the issue "The Battle of America"—says man unable to save democracy in peace couldn't do it in a crisis.

His company cut electric rates 25 per cent, expanded and created new jobs during the depression. Sort of gives the voter a slant on a new type of candidate. Performances in place of promises!

That's helping the under dog and not putting it on the news-reels!

Torch light parades and rallies are in the making throughout Central and Western New York. There's a new awakening throughout the land.

Which may be the reason why 6 o'clock clubs are being organized; whole families and neighborhoods planning early morning voting parties to converge on the polls November 5th.

Looks like something is really getting started in the country—at last!

To M. H. F.: Have called attention to your suggestion to the proper authority and feel sure it will be acted upon. I see harm to him in publishing your letter.

Two kinds of theatre goers I dislike, those who talk constantly while the actors are trying to talk and those who tap their feet during particularly good musical numbers.

The Home Bureau women have the right idea about children, at least I think so. They are making toys and blocks for them, sewing dolls and the like to bring to public gatherings where children are likely to be. Under supervision, without annoying their parents and others present.

Judge Smith sure said something when he spoke at Ad Club last week and stated that if vicinity farmers could increase production of the 5,000 cows in this vicinity from 200 pounds of butterfat to 400 pounds of butterfat, it will increase their income three times.

Some of the older people of the community must have received quite a pleasant reminder of the past if they saw "Lillian Russell" the motion picture here last weekend. The old songs, the old styles revived, the New York of the gay 90's, all came back "after the ball" to sort of make one wish for that age and its emphasis on individualities and personalities, not machines.

That's all.

TAKE IT EASY!

THIS ONE—
YOU'VE HEARD

If a man runs after money, he's money-mad; if he keeps it, he's a capitalist; if he spends it, he's a playboy; if he doesn't get it, he's a ne'er-do-well; if he doesn't try to get it, he lacks ambition. If he gets it without working for it, he's a parasite; and if he accumulates it after a lifetime of hard work, people call him a fool who never got anything out of life.

Modern Youth

The truant officer grabbed little Quentin's ear.
"Why," he asked severely, "must you be the only boy in the school to play hooky?"
The kid shrugged.
"Cause 'live and let live' is my motto," he replied. "I don't want you to lose your job!"

Boy: "Would you object if I kissed you?"
Girl: (No answer).
Boy: "Would you care if I kissed you?"
Girl: (No answer).
Boy: "Say, are you deaf?"
Girl: "No, are you dumb?"

A drunk stumbled into a lamp post one dark night climbed up to the top. Feeling his way very carefully all around the pole he exclaimed, "My gosh! I'm walled in!"

Marjorie: That man you introduced me to yesterday took me to dinner last night, and he was very nice. He remarked especially on my bird-like appetite. What line is he in?
Cutting: He runs an ostrich farm.

Boggy: A dollar don't go as far this year as it did last year.
Woogy: No, but it goes a lot faster.

Frank: When you proposed to her, I suppose she said: "This is so sudden!"
Jack: No, she was honest and said: "The suspense has been terrible!"

Ethel: Yes, Dick, Dad says I'll be worth two million dollars of things turn out as it now looks.
Dick: Will you marry me, Ethel?
Ethel: Oh, no, Dick, I couldn't do that.
Dick: I knew you wouldn't.
Ethel: Then why did you ask me?
Dick: I just wanted to be able to say that I had lost two million dollars.

I was interested in a statement which I heard recently to the effect that every man, woman and child in the United States can ride in the cars which this country has. California has a car for every 2.8 persons, New York for every 5.7 persons, Pennsylvania 5.9 persons, Wyoming 3.7 persons, Mississippi 12.3 persons, the lowest number of cars per person in the country. There are only three states that have more than 10 persons per car.

That's all.

TAX FAX
Of New York State

—Richard Guylay

Two hours of every employee's average workday goes to pay for the cost of government. A machineist employed from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with an hour off for lunch, must work his last two hours, from 3 to 5 each day just to pay for the cost of local, state, and federal government. This year's defense appropriations may add another hour.

Public debt of the federal, state, and local governments in New York is equal to 30 per cent of the total assessed value of all property in the state.

From 20 to 25 cents out of every dollar you spend for food, clothing, and other necessities of life go for the upkeep of local, state, and national governments. And that's not including this year's unparalleled defense expenditures.

Taxes on farm lands and buildings in New York State are 155 per cent greater than they were before the first World War. If a farmer paid $100 in property taxes then, he pays $255 now.

The lengthening shadow of state government has spread over 13 counties in New York—with state expenditures each year exceeding the full assessed valuations of all those 13 counties, according to the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, Inc. of New York State.

Before the adoption of national defense emergency appropriations, the combined costs of state and local government exceeded those of the federal government—amounting to more than $9,000,000,000 a year.

81st Birthday Marked By A & P Food Stores

"Pioneers for Budgeteers" is theme of anniversary dramatizing widening of typical American diet.

How mass merchandising methods have widened the American diet by transforming luxury foods into inexpensive staples, is dramatized nationally this month by observance of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company's 81st Anniversary.

The anniversary theme, "Pioneers for Budgeteers—since 1859," was announced today by A. P. Gallagher, A & P executive. "We take our greatest pride in the fact that our constant striving for efficiency and lower retail prices has made it possible for millions of American families to enjoy beverages, vegetables, fruits, meats, poultry, fish and dairy products that were once considered luxuries," he said.

The history of our Company is a record of a constantly wider variety of quality foods being offered to a greater number of consumers," Mr. Gallagher said. "As a matter of fact, when George Huntington Hartford founded the A & P in 1859 with the first store in New York, his first act was to take tea out of the luxury class and make it available to budgeteers in modest circumstances. At that time tea was selling for $1.00 a pound due to the fact that the purchasing agent, importer, speculator, wholesaler tea dealer and wholesale grocer were all realizing their profit on every shipment of tea. By purchasing tea direct from China and eliminating in-between costs, Mr. Hartford succeeded in reducing the retail price to 30c a pound."

Mr. Gallagher said that the public response to this new method of merchandising resulted in the opening of new stores and the introduction of additional foodstuffs. The new mass merchandising principles were applied to coffee and they were so effective that the A & P today operates its own plantations in Brazil, and imports, roasts and distributes one out of every seven pounds of coffee used by American consumers.

"In the next three decades our Company gradually expanded their line from coffee, tea and spices to include other groceries, always with a view to bringing more foods to more consumers," Mr. Gallagher said.

"Probably our greatest contribution to a healthful American diet was the part we played in making fresh fruits and vegetables available the year round. It is not many years since the average home was limited to canned and dried fruits and vegetables during the fall and winter months. The quantity of fresh fruits and vegetables produced throughout the country now compared with that produced prior to our coming into this field shows a tremendous increase, particularly in the southern states whose produce is consumed during the fall and winter seasons. Further, our promotional activities along these lines have encouraged consumers to use fresh fruits and vegetables on a year-round basis and have benefited both farmers and consumers."

Strawberries in January is a particularly dramatic example of this development and one for which we feel we are largely responsible. The per capita consumption of lettuce has increased 300 percent in and consumer, he emphasized, A the last 20 years and nine times as many peas are eaten."

Recalling the days when an orange was seldom seen during winter months except in the toe of a Christmas stocking," Mr. Gallagher said that mass merchandising has been particularly effective in increasing consumption of citrus fruits. In the past 20 years consumption of oranges has more than doubled, he said.

Canned citrus fruits and juice are among the most recent additions to the daily American diet. We were the first distributors of canned grapefruit, and the effectiveness of our activities in offering this product at reasonable prices is indicated by the fact that canned citrus fruits and juice now rank among the first four or five items in point of volume and distribution in our entire canned food line."

The same insistence upon quality purchasing and low-cost mass distribution has characterized the company's activities since it began to distribute meat, Mr. Gallagher said. He cited as a particular contribution the effective way in which the A & P increased consumption of sliced bacon by bringing it down from the luxury class.

Mr. Gallagher said that the nation's mass distributors had performed yeoman service in distributing dairy products. The company also maintains a small creamery for experimental purposes. Similarly, he said, the company's cheese department has constantly recommended and promoted the sale of "cured" cheese, and that in the operation of its own refrigerated cheese warehouses it has been able to buy and cure its own cheese.

"The same emphasis upon superior quality, lower cost, and wider distribution has characterized the company's activities in the canned goods field," Mr. Gallagher said. "Packing methods have admittedly improved appreciably in recent years and the company has pioneered grade labeling of canned fruits and vegetables, as advocated by the United States Department of Agriculture, for years."

All this wider distribution of quality foods is a direct result of the company's policy of reducing the price spread between producer and consumer. This elimination of in-between costs was A & P's introduction in 1912 of the "economic store," which dispensed with delivery premiums, telephone orders and other expense-producing items which raised costs to consumers, Mr. Gallagher said. More recently he explained, the food chain has been a leader in development of the modern "super-market," which features self-service, and has already proved itself as a major contribution to the nation's retail economy.

In conclusion, Mr. Gallagher declared that "Our organization, by working to provide quality food for Americans at the lowest prices compatible with fair returns to producers and wage earners, has been able to provide a continuing supply of nearly every old-time luxury at low prices. We are confident that the future will bring still further advances in the work we are doing."

Achievement Night

Program in Bath Thurs.

Plans are complete for the second annual 4-H Achievement Night to be held in Bath, Thursday, October 17 at 8:00 in the auditorium of the Bath High School. The event brings to a close the second successful year of 4-H Club work in the county.

The program will include the awarding of Achievement pins by R. S. Brown, key banker and president of the First National Bank of Addison. This year marks the twenty-fifth consecutive year the bankers have made this presentation to New York State 4-H members, totaling over 300,000 pins.

Leon W. Taylor, 4-H Club agent reports that a large percentage of the Club members' project records have already been received, but that a considerable number more is expected during the next two or three days. These records must be in the 4-H Office before Achievement pins, fair checks and other awards are made.

Sunday is Mission Day in Catholic Churches

The 13th annual celebration of Mission Sunday will take place in Catholic Churches everywhere on October 20.

Americans are the only people on earth today who are both permitted by their government and are personally able to carry out the purposes of this observance, which are: To acquaint Catholics with mission work and to raise funds for its support.

Pope Pius XII will, therefore, for the first time personally appeal to Catholics in the United States this year on the eve of Mission Sunday, October 19, urging generous contributions to the mission cause.

European nations who can no longer maintain even their own missions in the field include France, Belgium, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain, Luxembourg, Poland, Great Britain is fighting for her life and has little to give. These peoples first brought the light of Christianity to the United States to which in times past they sent both the missionaries and the money to support them. Of them all in recent years little Holland gave the missions most per capita of her population.

Democracy has its roots in the principles of Christianity which teaches the dignity of the individual man. Speaking recently on world conditions to the American Legion, His Excellency, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, of New York said: "There is only one road to peace that I know of, the high road of democracy, the road marked by the signposts of the Ten Commandments, the road back to Christ and His teachings, in personal life, national life and international life."

The number of Catholic missionaries today is 266,025 men and women, a genuine peace army whose soldiers, fighting solely for the ideals of Christ, staff schools, hospitals, dispensaries, leper homes, orphanages, training schools and old people's homes often in distant lands, with no hope of remuneration and frequently at great risk to their lives.

The mission fields in which they work include China, India, Indo-China, Japan, Oceania, Africa, Latin America, the East Indies, Alaska, Canada and the United States.

The collections in Catholic churches throughout America on Mission Sunday, October 20, will be made under the auspices of The Society of the Propagation of the Faith. The activities of this society are guided by local priests.

The funds raised on Mission Sunday will be distributed on a basis of 40% for the American Board of Catholic Missions in the U. S. A.; 9% percent for the Catholic Near East Welfare Association, and 51% for all other foreign mission fields.

Mansfield Ties Knights 12 All

Mansfield High played Addison High to a 12 to 12 tie here last week and was within the shadow of the goal posts for another touchdown when the whistle blew last Friday afternoon. This is the second Pennsylvania team to cross the Addison goal line on the home field, the only teams to do this in three years.

The teams played scoreless ball in the opening quarter but in the second the visitors opened up an aerial attack, aided by a heavy line and the ball went over for a touchdown without a conversion. The score at the half was six to nothing in favor of Mansfield. Again the visitors ran the ball quickly down the field in the opening minute of the third quarter and on a short pass the ball went over and the kicker again failed to convert. Score 12 to 0.

Addison then got going. On the kickoff, Ricker booted the ball to Mansfield and a fumble resulted with O'Connor recovering for the Knights. On three successive plays Addison scored, the last play being a surprise pass from Andy Dominick to Keith Kizer who ran 30 yds. for the touchdown. The second Addison touchdown was set up shortly after when Dominick threw to Hargrave over the line. At the closing whistle Mansfield was on the Addison two yard line.

Interesting Books Reviewed By Miss O'Connor for Civic Society

Former English teacher returns to speak at Friday night meeting—Best sellers and others of general interest brought to attention of members—Mrs. Susan Perry program chairman.

"Let's talk about books," Miss Cecelia O'Connor, former English instructor in Addison High, told the members of the Women's Civic Society and guests last Friday night.

Miss O'Connor is now English instructor in Wellsville High. She returned to Addison to deliver this talk as part of National Book Week. She was presented by Mrs. Susan D. Perry, public librarian.

The meeting was held in the recreation rooms of the public library. Several new books were on display. There were about 200 children and adult books on the shelves for display.

Miss O'Connor prefaced his book talk by stating that she would rather talk about books than review them, for some books just cannot be reviewed. She then talked about books she has read, told something of the story, called attention to the style of the author. "No Other Man" by Alfred Noyes, author of "The Highwayman", was described in detail. This is a book written to protest against the way man is living. It is an appeal to turn away from things which have debased the mind. It is a warning. The author is a poet who turned to prose writing as a means of expression.

"An So To Bath" by Cecil Roberts is a book which describes England very well in the opinion of Miss O'Connor. Henry Rox is author of "Banana Circus" a series of picture of people made from bananas. Its uniqueness makes it interesting.

Miss O'Connor also stated that "How to Read a Book" by Mortimer J. Adler was interesting, although it followed closely the Russian book "Sesmine Lebris". Phil Strong, author of "State Fair" writes "If School Keeps" which to Miss O'Connor is his autobiography.

A book recommended for young girls is "Little Whirlwind" by Margaret A. Hubbard. This tells of the life of a Canadian family favored to spend a winter in an Indian camp. Anna Louise Strong is author of "My Native Land". This is a story of America and in the opinion of the speaker seems to follow the life of the Joad family. It has some Communistic

Refreshments were served after the speaking program. Miss Katherine Dartin, club president was in charge of a business meeting. Flowers for decorations were donated by Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Farnham. Mrs. Albert Chatfield was chairman of the hospital committee and she was assisted by Mrs. Percy Smith, Mrs. George Freeman, Mrs. Fred Farnham, Mrs. Nellie Gage, Mrs. Milton H. Crane.

State Theatre Overflows With Crowd Eager To Hear Taft

Senator asserts New York's 47 electoral votes may decide next election—many notable G. O. P. figures appear at Corning Rally Tuesday evening.

"New York State with its 47 electoral votes may well be the determining factor in the coming election," asserted Senator Robert A. Taft before a huge audience that filled the State Theatre to overflowing Tuesday evening. "If you want to elect the man who will lead this country to the greatest Republic in the world, you have just as important a task here as in any community in the United States," continued Senator Taft as he went on to stress the importance of getting out the largest possible vote in all the upstate districts to overcome the normal democratic majority of Greater New York.

Senator Taft was presented to the greatest Republican rally that Corning has seen in a generation according to older citizens present, by Amory Houghton, president of the Corning Glass Works. Mr. Houghton said: "I support Wendell L. Willkie enthusiastically and wholeheartedly for many reasons. He understands the importance of preserving our American free enterprises. I am for Wendell Willkie because I know he does not believe in business-baiting. I know he is the answer to the third term problem, and no one can deny that the third term would lead into national bankruptcy and inflation."

The rally was called to order by George A. King, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and after the singing of the Star Spangled come per person is much less than it was 12 years ago. The New Deal has spent 66 billion dollars in seven years... the national debt has been increased by 25 billion dollars... and a tax burden created which this generation and generations still to be born will have to bear.

"People have seen the failures of the New Deal... they have been recognized since 1938 when congressional elections showed a growing sentiment for the Republican party. Today, if it weren't for the war, there'd be no question as to the outcome of the election."

"If our national defenses are inadequate, the New Deal must be blamed for seven years' laxity. In 1933 when Hitler came to power, Germany had but 100,000 men in its inadequately equipped army. It had no tanks. It had no planes. It had no artillery. Hitler has built the terrible German war machine during the very years that Roosevelt has been in power."

"Roosevelt claims he knew what was happening. Why did he allow it to happen? I do not know that he ever was refused money for defense—I cannot recall that he ever has been refused money for anything—but Roosevelt doesn't believe coordination necessary. He will not delegate power or authority to others. He thinks one man—that he can do everything alone. Well, the record certainly does not justify the claim that only Roosevelt can handle national defense."

"While the Secretary of Agriculture has been spreading vast subsidies over the country in an effort to raise the farmer's income, Secretary of State Hull has been lowering tariffs and inviting a flood of farm products from other countries—the one effort nullifies the other."

"Despite the fact that more than six billion dollars has been spent by the New Deal in seven years on the ordinary maintenance of the military forces of the United States our powder plants today have only capacity for producing 50,000 pounds a day. An army of two million men at war would need at least 1,200,000 pounds of gunpowder a day."

Reelection of President Roosevelt means expansion of the bureau which now are interfering with and regulating business. Months ago, according to Senator Taft, it required 17 volumes to contain a recapitulation of the bureau's regulations. Such government by bureau is called National Socialism in Germany and the success of the third term will be interpreted as a mandate from the people for the New Dealers to continue spending. No government ever spent itself out of debt or into prosperity. The New Deal will never balance the budget but will pay its debts by confiscating the savings of its people—and in the end that means bankruptcy and inflation.

"There's no village council, I repeat, that doesn't have more sense about money than the President," concluded Senator Taft.

"In 1928 the national income was 80 billion dollars. This year it may possibly be 70 billions, but remember that there are 12 million more people now than in 1928, so the in-

Democratic headquarters attacking Willkie on the grounds of his German ancestry have made the latter angry for the first time in the campaign. Bruce Barton has demanded Democratic headquarters reveal the source of the "smear." Chairman Flynn has disclaimed all knowledge of the source of this, said to be the lowest, most contemptible piece of literature ever issued in an American election campaign by any party.

Charles Lindbergh made a radio address this week in which he said that "our system of life hangs on this election." GENERAL NEWS

James Hines, convicted Tammany leader was finally lodged in prison this week after a long succession of delays while he fought serving the sentence. Hines was prosecuted by District Attorney Dewey for contriving a lottery. His trial was one of the most notorious in the annals of political bossism.

Nazis are going to postpone during this war the use of "coal butter," although it has been tried out successfully on a member of the Gestapo. A chemist has been able to extract a tasteless fat from coal during the process of making synthetic gasoline from coal. However Hitler is evidently cagey about putting even his substitute eating people on such a diet for the present.

Major Gen. Schley advises that the U. S. should re-locate defense plants on the interior of the continent. He points out that one of the first moves Germany made in the armament program was to put vital munitions industries in the interior. He says that in case of war this country must depend on munitions produced far from the sea-board.

The draft went into effect yesterday with young men from 21 to 35 inclusive. It is believed a total of some sixteen and one-half million men are made available for service by the registration.

October Heralds New Signs In the Sky

Definite signposts of the changing seasons are in every direction—particularly if you are looking skyward. October brings, among other things, new sky pictures that appeal to many people. For instance the Great Square of Pegasus, now almost overhead; the autumnal triangle of the three bright stars, Vega, Altair and Deneb, and the "celestial sea" in the southern part of the sky in which various sea creatures, as imagined by the ancients, appear to float. Of these sea creatures the most conspicuous is the Southern Fish marked by the distinctive star Fomalhaut, the farthest south of all the first magnitude stars visible in this latitude, and in sight for only a few weeks at this season.

In the northeast the fine white star Capella—really a great sun similar to our sun—heralds the approach of winter, while in the northwest the even brighter star Vega, which has shown steadily through the summer season is getting ready to bow out of the scene. No more until next spring will those other famous starworts, Arcturus and Spica, appear in the mid-evening sky.

You will have no trouble in tracing out Pegasus, with its great Square and Andromeda, marked by the curving row of stars extending out from one corner of the square. The two constellations, which for practical purposes are one, monopolize most of the overhead sky at this season, a striking and beautiful figure.

Close to the middle star of Andromeda is the marvelous Andromeda nebula, supposedly visible to a good eye on a clear night, although many conscientious searchers have never been able to find it. However, a small glass brings it out, while through the giant telescopes it is one of the unforgettable spectacles of the sky, a great spiral pinwheel which is really, say the astronomers, an enormous system of suns like the Milky Way system of which the sun and earth are parts.

The Andromeda nebula is one of the nearest of all the star systems known to exist beyond our system. Light traveling at 186,000 miles a second from this nebula takes a mere 900,000 years according to most estimates, to reach us. By contrast, light from the sun takes only 8 minutes and 19 seconds.

In that "southern sea" to the south, covering virtually the entire lower half of the sky, are Capricornus, the She-Goat; Aquarius, the Water Carrier; Pisces, the Fish and Cetus, the Whale. The last named brings with it the extraordinary variable star, Mira (Wonderful) one of the giant stars of the universe, which fluctuates in brightness over a period roughly about 11 months in length, although it occasionally varies for some unknown reason. It was supposed to have reached

Surplus Hams to Be Distributed by Welfare

His office has also distributed to the welfare officers of the towns approximately 16 tons of slab bacon furnished by the Surplus Commodities Division and shipped through Swift & Company.

Mr. Hardenbrook states that these supplies will be distributed by the welfare officers under regulations provided by the Federal Surplus Commodities Commission.

Bob Hill Writes Of Marine Life

Robert Hill, a private in the United States Marine Corps located at Parris Island, South Carolina, writes to his folks here, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hill and gives some highlights of the life in training for Marines.

He says in part: "We have had our first rain. It has been coming down for about an hour but now the sun has come out and boy it sure is hot. We have had the af-its maximum about the middle of July, after which it wanes rapidly, so it is probably not now visible to the naked eye.

The historic group Perseus, containing the equally historic variable star, Algol, is well up in the east. In the western sky are Cygnus, the Swan, or the Northern Cross; the irregular but famous group Hercules; the bright stars Vega and Altair. In the north the Big Dipper lies virtually flat against the horizon, possibly too low for most city observers to see. The little group Cepheus, overhead and a little to the north, its famous star containing the first example of the fluctuating star known as Cepheid. Variable ever discovered. These variables, now found in many parts of the sky, provide invaluable data from which distances and light values of stars can be measured.

The prize attraction of this month as it will be for a number of months to come, continues to be Jupiter and Saturn, floating side by side in the east. Jupiter appears considerably the brighter, owing in part to his greatly superior size and in part to the fact that he is nearer the earth. Although Jupiter, being on an inside track in relation to the sun, moves faster than Saturn, both are now apparently moving backward together—an optical illusion caused by the motion of the earth—and on October 11 will be in striking conjunction, almost appearing to touch. For a number of nights around that date the half moon will add to the spectacle.

Through even a small telescope the four brightest moons of Jupiter and the famous rings of Saturn are a fascinating study these nights.

Are You the Famous ONE?

Have YOU ever been interviewed by a Gallup poll interviewer? Has one of your friends ever been interviewed, or has a friend of yours ever heard of any flesh and blood person interviewed? If you can answer one of these questions in the affirmative you may become famous—famous as the only living American so far found who has voted in this surprisingly select poll.

In New York recently two newspaper reporters set out to try to run to earth one of these rare species of homo supposed to make up the "tasteing" membership of the Gallup poll. They interviewed men and women by the score, they rang telephone numbers by the thousand and finally threatened to start out on a far-reaching series of chain letters designed to enmesh just one Gallup voter. At last reports the first one was yet to be found.

Dr. Gallup is said to emphasize that his scientific poll is based upon a very small cross section of the public. Those trying to find just one person interviewed are beginning to think they are, indeed, scarce—just about as scarce as hen's teeth. And to think that people can be actually influenced in casting their own vote by this infinitesimal number—so small a police net in the Metropolis cannot drag one into sight.

ternoon off. I took my trade school test and passed it. My bid for "aviation mechanic" is in the office. When the officer interviewed me, he asked me if I had had any experience in mechanics. I said, "yes", repairing all farm machinery and working on tractors and etc. He said he thought I would be good material for it and put a check mark in front of my name.

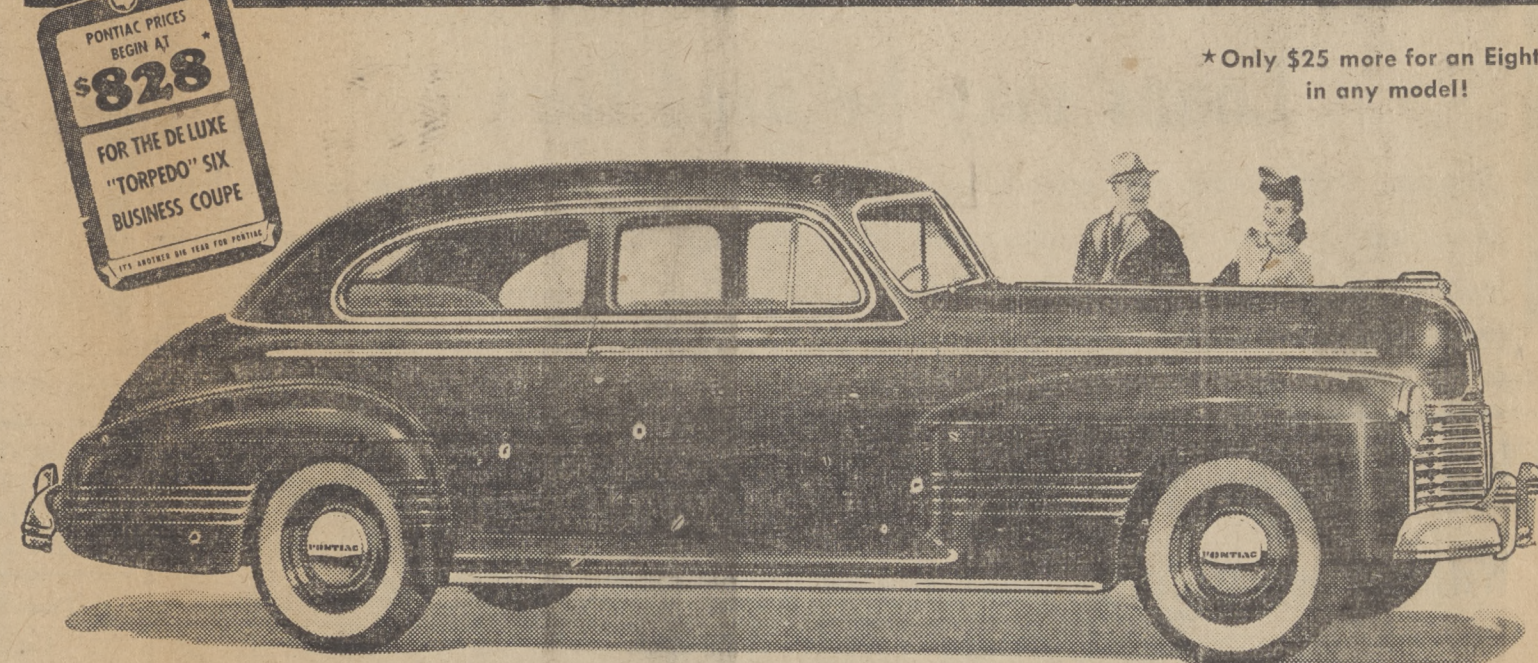

"We have 14 more days of drilling and then 11 on the rifle range. After that we have a week of K. P. duty (kitchen police). There is a detachment leaving for Cuba this week. Tell any of the boys who are thinking of joining the Marines to write me first. I'll give them the real dope. It sure is tough and I've found a lot of muscles I never knew I had but I guess I can take it, in fact better than a lot of them. Four fell over this morning when we had to run half a mile with rifle and equipment, the so-called. We had rifle inspection right after and they all were disqualified for they had sand in the barrels. Chow time, must close."

Our Football Experts Average In Forecasts

The Advertiser - Sentinel board of football experts have been hitting the scores pretty good during the three weeks, or the first period of the football season.

As the season progresses, upsets occur which throw them off the track on their experting and guessing with the result that the percentages have dropped during the past week.

However, three of them guessed the exact score on the Nebraska Indiana games of last week 13 to 7. They were Frank Finnerty, Dr. Stuart Bean and William Miller. Finnerty also picked the correct score on the Fordham-Tulane game, 20 to 7.

So far in the 25 games given them the recapitulation shows that Finnerty has an 83.3 average in the forecasts and Coach Miller is in second with an 80 and Dr. Bean has 70 and "Milt" Crane has 68 per cent.

Arkport Closes Home Football Season in AHS

The home season for the Knights touch football squad will end Friday afternoon on the high school gridiron when the Arkport squad comes to Addison for a return game this season.

The Knights have been scored upon three times since the Arkport squad was played before and feel that the crossing of their goal line by visiting teams must stop. The passing combination of Dominick to Hargrave and Dominick to Kizer with the line smashing of Ingersoll should prove a hard combination for the Arkport team to beat.

These teams are two of the most evenly matched teams in the southern tier league and the game should prove an attraction to those who like a fast game played by two teams of near equal strength.

Schoonover attended a birthday surprise for Milo Albee in Tuscarora.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Holden were Mr. and Mrs. George Hurd of Borden and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Casson of Liberty Pole.

Willkie Motion Picture Caravan To Tour Steuben

Direct from New York City where it was previewed by thousands, the G. O. P. streamlined Willkie-McNary trailer, one of a fleet which will tour upstate New York for the national, state and local tickets under the auspices of the New York State Republican Committee, will arrive in Steuben County on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, October 23, 24, 25, Edwin F. Jaekle, State Chairman, said in an announcement received here today.

Equipped with a projector for showing sound movies on a 5 by 7 screen, an amplifying system, radio and two phonograph tables for reproducing speeches, the trailer has been acclaimed by those who previewed it in New York, Philadelphia and other cities as the last word in the modern technique of political campaigning.

"Our program contemplates having the trailers visit every city, town, village and hamlet in the State," Chairman Jaekle says. "As many as 15,000 have gathered around one of the trailers and have stood for hours listening to the music, and watching the movies of Wendell L. Willkie. It is a thrilling departure from the traditional cut-and-dried form of street corner meetings. It gives the audience an opportunity to see the candidate on the screen and to hear his voice."

The movies are shown on the screen by arc-light projection from a standard 35 mm film. The motion picture equipment is the same as is used in the most modern picture theatres.

Each trailer will be accompanied by a union crew of technicians to operate the extensive equipment. On the open road when the sound equipment is operated at maximum intensity the voice can be heard over a distance of four miles.

The itinerary through this county has been announced as follows: Thursday, October 24th—3:00 P. M. Painted Post; 4:00 P. M. Canan; 5:00 P. M. Addison; 7:00 P. M. Hammondsport; 9:00 P. M. Bath.

Only the most unsophisticated would believe this statement of his concerning America. On August 24, 1940, only two months after the fall of France, George Britt's book, "The Fifth Column Is Here," was published. This book is the complete negation of Hitler's statements regarding his disinterest in America.

Mr. Britt's book is thoroughly readable. It is based on articles originally written on fifth column activities for the New York World Telegram in June, 1940. It is up to the minute and based on investigation of facts and public statements.

All this is no wild dream. Hitler's advance guard is here—on our own soil! They're building the Trojan horse. Skeptical? Here are excerpts from the book:

The mere fact that you can vote is something in this world today, people are being told and there is a drive by both major parties here to get out as many voters as possible for registration so that a big vote may be recorded on election day.

"Edison The Man" Avon Picture with Spencer Tracy

Capturing all the fascination and romance of the tremendous scientific progress of the last American half century, "Edison The Man" presents the wizard of Menlo Park as a gifted, kind-hearted, thoroughly admirable person with a personal courage equal to the greatest adversity. Spencer Tracy, in the title role gives a feeling and a restrained performance that should win him much praise in critical circles, and he is supported by a cast of competent actors. The picture opens at the Avon Theatre Sunday for three days.

Like its predecessor "Young Tom Edison", it will prove especially attractive to scientific students in schools and to people in industry, for they will see the beginnings of things now considered common.

The picture opens as Edison, the old man, is being feted at a banquet praised for all his achievements. As the speaker is lauding him, Edison, eyes dimmed with memories, thinks back into his past the camera flashing back with him. His first successfully commercial invention, the stock ticker gives him funds to open his own laboratory in Menlo Park, N. J. He married Rita Johnson, a telegraph operator with whom he conducted Morse code correspondence while working in the same laboratory in Newark.

At Menlo Park with his laboratory assistants he produces the inventions that make him famous. Financial conditions arise which threaten the existence of the laboratory. The invention of the "talking machine" gets him out of this difficulty. The elusive problem of light by electricity now occupies his mind. After thousands of experiments, the incandescent bulb emerges.
